Editorial Comment

Prisoners taken say the Huns are getting desperate and are willing to quit to avert invasion of Germany.

The war trade board has restricted the output of passenger automobiles for the last half of 1918 to the total produced in the last quarter of 1917.

Linotypes have advanced $500 since June 1st. All kinds of job printing presses have advanced 10 per cent since August 1st.

Lieut. Arch D. Worsham, of Henderson, Ky., recently fell on the French battle field while leading his men over the top.

A million and a half Americans are "somewhere in France," not figuring in the Bapaume-Noyon squeeze. Just keep your ear to the ground and they will be heard from soon.

The British and French are sweeping back both ends of the salient towards the old Hindenburg line. The British have crossed it on one stretch and are still pushing the beaten foe.

It is said that Berlin is getting into a state of mind as well as the towns along the Rhine and that pictures of the Kaiser are being torn down. The Huns' eyes are being opened.

Forty-five young men who had reached their twenty-first year since June 5, registered in Henderson before the local board. Thirty-five of the registrants were white and ten were colored.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, senior Republican in point of service and ranking minority member of the Foreign Relations Committee, was elected unanimously floor leader by Republicans of the Senate in conference today, to succeed the late Senator Gallinger, of New Hampshire.

Fifty-five officers, non-commissioned officers and men of certain American divisions were awarded the Legion of Honor, the Military Medal and the War Cross of Distinguished Service Sunday morning at the most brilliant decorated ceremony the army has held in France. Similar decorations have been awarded seventy-two others who were unable to be present, owing to the fact that they were in a hospital. Most of the awards have been given for gallant conduct in the Marne battle.

Government operation of railroads has so far been expensive. Owing to big back payments of wage increases, the railroads under federal control in June reported an aggregate deficit of $58,959,000 in railway operating income, as compared with positive earnings of $98,909,000 in June, 1917. These figures, compiled by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and announced today, show that the government has lost about $290,000,000 in operation of railroads during the first six months this year.

The British continue to smash the Huns toward the old Hindenburg line, which has almost been reached in the northern battle zone. The defenses of Bapaume have either already been captured or are in process of being captured.

The Germans exhibit signs of crackling at some places but are offering desperate resistance. Many more guns, some of large caliber, have been taken. One British corps alone has counted eighty guns.

There is evidence of confusion in the enemy rear. Units of the same divisions buried into the battle have been taken at points separated by many miles. Quantities of material are falling into British hands because the foe has not troubled to apply the torch of explosives.

SUNDAY'S LIST.

The American casualty list issued last night contained 183 names. 46 men were killed in action and thirty one are missing.

ALEX JONES

NOTED HOTEL CLERK PASSES AWAY IN THE CITY OF LOUISVILLE.

Louisville, Aug. 26.—After a remarkable career as a hotel man, with no parallel known here, Alexander Washington Jones died at 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon of Bright's disease at his home, 135 East Chestnut street. His health had been declining for some time and he had retired.

Of the sixty-two years of Mr. Jones' life, forty-three had been spent in the employment of Louisville hotels. For many years he was chief clerk at the Willard Hotel. He was known to thousands of persons, to whom his full flowing beard, his courtesy, and his thoughtfulness and kindness were as familiar as the names of the hotels he had served. He had a fondness for the people of his own city and persons who stopped at the hotels where he had faithfully served the public that forbade his accepting more lucrative positions with hotels in other cities.

Mr. Jones was born in a hotel in Hardinsburg, Ky., on November 13, 1856. Upon the death of his father, A. W. Jones, the proprietor, he came to Louisville in March, 1873, to be clerk at the old Alexander Hotel, Eighth and Main streets. Mr. Jones went with Col. Joseph H. Alexander when he became the proprietor of the Willard at the time of the notable Louisville Exposition.

For more than thirty years Mr. Jones was a member of the First Christian church. His wife survives him.

Under its terms youths would be permitted to enter educational institutions at Government expense for a period of equaling their military service, for period not to exceed two years.

BOTH BAPAUME AND ROYE ARE DOOMED TO FALL ANY MOMENT

(By Associated Press.)

While the Germans are busily engaged defending Se'ers against attacks from the British and French from the Ancre river to the region of Soissons, Field Marshal Haig Monday morning struck over a new front on the northern battle zone. A new offensive was launched from east of Arras southward to Cojeul. All along this front the British pressed forward in some places to the depth of more than two miles, taking a half dozen villages.

South of Cojeul, the British attacks brought still further gains, while around Bapaume they again moved forward. Haig's men now stand well within gun range and nearly all around Bapaume, which it seems must soon fall.

The British east of Albert on the Somme also made some gains while both French and British further southward all the way to Soissons have bettered their positions.

The French again are hammering at Roye, which like Bapaume to the northward seems doomed to fall.

In the region north of Soissons the Germans have thrown forward heavy counter attacks, which have all failed. There is still activity in the Vosges where the Americans recently have been fighting, while on the Italian front the Austrian attacks have been repulsed.

SUNDAY SUMMARY.

(By Associated Press.)

Notwithstanding the fact that the Germans have brought up strong reinforcements on both wings of the battlefront, the British and French forces everywhere have beaten off the enemy and continued their victorious progress.

Many additional towns have been captured by Field Marshal Haig's men in the North, while the French have successfully overcome obstacles placed in their way and reached territory north of Soissons which adds further to the danger of the Germans in the Noyon sector and to their line running eastward from Soissons to Rheims.

All along the front from Arras to the Somme, the Germans are gradually being driven back to the old Hindenburg line by the British. Along the Somme the enemy is being harassed well to east of Bray, while farther north strong counter attacks have been repulsed and the town of Man-metz, the Mametz wood, Martinpuich, Le Sars and Le Barue have been captured.

It is around Bapaume that the Germans are keeping up their strongest efforts to hold back the tide that is surging against them but the British are continuing to make slight gains daily in the process of surrounding the town, which seemingly soon must be evacuated. The taking of Le Sars and Le Barue appears to be a fore-runner of this eventuality. Le Barue is only 2 1/2 miles southwest of Bapaume.

Everywhere, except directly south of Bapaume, the British are across the Bapaume-Albert road and north of the town they are fast pressing forward toward the Hindenburg line. Unofficial reports have placed the British in the outskirts of Bullecourt, which is just west of the old line.

Since last Wednesday the British have taken more than 17,000 prisoners and large numbers of guns and great quantities of supplies also have fallen into their hands. Some of the prisoners taken have been identified as coming from Austro-Hungarian units.

The Germans are launching strong counter-attacks against the French between the Oise and Ailette rivers in an endeavor to hold back Gen. Manin's army, which is threatening the entire German front in this region. Here also the Germans have been reinforced by troops from the dual monarchy. North of Soissons in the region of Bagnex, the French have made further progress eastward and now are abreast the railroad line running from Soissons to Laon. A considerable number of additional prisoners have fallen into French hands.

As yet there has been no movement by the Germans along the Vesle river to indicate that a retirement toward the Aisne is in immediate prospect. The Americans and French in this region continue to heavily shell the enemy's back areas. Farther east in the Vosges region the Americans are keeping up their patrol activity against the enemy. The Americans also are busily engaged in bombing German points behind the line. Thirty-eight bombs were dropped from airplanes on Confinas Saturday and ten direct hits were scored. Considerable fighting in the air also is taking place, one American airplane apparently having disposed of two German Fokkers and two other Americans each sending down one of the enemy planes.

HOOVER GIVES ONE OBSTACLE HIS REPORT YET REMAINS

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, Aug. 26.—Herbert Hoover, Food Administrator, today told President Wilson the details of his trip abroad. Arrangements made for supplies to the Allies of food on the part of the United States must be placed in added economy. Mr. Hoover told the President no new voluntary rationing plan was contemplated, but that a campaign with "economy" as the watchword was contemplated.

NEW DRUGGIST.

Mr. Geo. B. Kirkwood has bought out the drug store of Lawson H. Faxon, who is engaged in the military service and is at home on a brief furlough. Mr. Kirkwood comes from Madisonville where he has been a druggist for several years. He is a young man of splendid attainments and social prominence and with his family will be cordially welcomed to the city.

IN POLICE COURT.

In an altercation on Sixth street yesterday, Junio Wann cut Bessie Gayce with a knife and drew a $22.50 fine in police court. It is claimed the Gayce woman was armed with a fork. Both participants are colored.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Differences between the Treasury and the Ways and Means Committee on levying 3 per cent differential on unearned income appeared tonight the only obstacle to the completion to the draft of the revenue bill designed to raise eight billion dollars. Because of a temporary disagreement, Mr. Kitchen chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, indicated tonight the committee might not be able to report to the House until Friday.

FAMILY REUNION.

Three sons of Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson, of Chicago, are here for a family reunion and to attend the fair. Dr. Warren Johnson and wife and Dr. Clifton Johnson and wife came through in their car, starting Sunday and being delayed by muddy roads. One is a physician and the other a dentist. Karl M. Johnson a lawyer, came by rail. The fourth son, Tom, of Jackson, Tenn., is unable to be present.

Mrs. Jennie Pierce died Sunday at the Western State Hospital. She was 64 years of age and death was due to tuberculosis. Interment was in Riverside cemetery.

COMPROMISE ON BONE DRY JULY 1 1919

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, Aug. 26.—Nation-wide bone-dry prohibition, effective July 1, 1919, and continuing during the war at least, loomed today as a strong possibility, through compromise negotiations in Congress.

An amendment for the passage of legislation to stop all sales of intoxicants on that date, leaders of both wet and dry factions stated tonight seemed in sight. President Wilson was represented as not opposing the legislation and Senators believed the House would accept the proposal under the negotiations. A definite gentleman's agreement is expected in the Senate within a few days.

MERCHANTS TO CLOSE

THIS AFTERNOON AND LET EMPLOYEES ATTEND THE FAIR.

This is Hopkinsville Day at the fair and a movement was started last night to arrange the usual half holiday to give everybody a chance to attend in the afternoon. A number of merchants suggested that this be done, although it had been overlooked. A hasty conference was held and the result was that the Secretary of the H. B. M. A. was asked to call upon the merchants officially to close. Accordingly the following request was authorized:

Merchants, Attention!

All members of the H. B. M. A. are hereby requested to close their respective places of business at noon today and give their employees a half holiday to attend the opening of the Pennyroyal Fair.

GARNER DALTON, Secretary.

It is quite likely that most of the merchants will close and with favorable weather the fair will open with a big crowd.

ONLY 45 REGISTRANTS

The registration last Saturday of all the boys in Christian county who have reached their 21st birthdays since June of this year, was exceedingly light. There were only forty-five all told. Of these eleven were colored. It had been expected that the registration would be light, but if came as a surprise to the officials that only 45 should register. These men will be sent their questionnaires as soon as possible and they will then be called for examination and classified. From all appearances, the young men who registered will make a fine physical showing when called and the late 1918 class will have few rejections on account of physical disqualifications.

TURKS BEAT GERMANS.

(By Associated Press.)

TOURIST WOUNDED

CAR MISTAKEN FOR BLOCKADE RUNNER AND FIRED ON BY OFFICERS AND CAR IS TORN UP.

Last night another thrilling chapter was added to the history of the efforts of the department of Justice to put an end to blockade running. A party of tourists enroute to Atlanta, Ga., from Canton, O., traveling in a bid Cadillac "8" touring car, was fired upon by special agents of the department of justice near Ridge-top. Charles Lehman, aged 60, was wounded.

There were no other casualties. The car was badly damaged when it ran into a heavy wire cable which had been stretched across the pike by the agents. It was also struck by several bullets.

Mr. Lehman was removed to the city hospital immediately after the shooting, where an operation was performed this morning to remove the bullet from a large caliber gun from his right hip. It is thought the operation will prove entirely successful.

In the tourist party were Charles Lehman, the wounded man, L. H. Lehman, his son who was driving the car, Otto Vickie and Karl Koeppe.—Nashville Banner.

THE KENTUCKIAN FOR SALE

It is my purpose to retire from active participation in the newspaper business in the near future, to devote my attention to other affairs. To that end, the Daily Kentuckian is hereby offered for sale. Its business is on a successful basis and shows a large increase from month to month. The decision announced has been hastened by the increasing difficulties of securing competent and skilled labor to publish the paper, due to the fact that every man of military age on the force has been called to the service. The plant will be sold with or without the building it has long occupied. From the right party a proposition to lease might be entertained. Existing contracts will be cared for in the transfer.

Tracing Stain by Watches.

The first number of a novel casualty list has just appeared in Germany. It contained the number of watches found among the belongings of men killed in action who cannot otherwise be identified. Watches, when sold or repaired, are usually marked and numbered by the watchmaker and recorded, and the German military authorities, by circulating the new casualty list among watchmakers throughout Germany, hope to establish the identity of many dead soldiers.

A NERVOUS WRECK

From Three Years' Suffering. Says Cardui Made Her Well.

Texas City, Tex.—In an interesting statement, Mrs. G. H. Schill, of this town, says: "For three years I suffered untold agony with my head. I was unable to do any of my work."

I just wanted to sleep all the time, for that was the only ease I could get, when I was asleep. I became a nervous wreck just from the awful suffering with my head.

I was so nervous that the least noise would make me jump out of my bed. I had no energy, and was unable to do anything. My son, a young boy, had to do all my household duties.

I was not able to do anything until I took Cardui. I took three bottles in all, and it surely cured me of those awful headaches. That has been three years ago, and I know the cure is permanent, for I have never had any headache since taking Cardui.

Nothing relieved me until I took Cardui. It did wonders for me."

Try Cardui for your troubles—made from medicinal ingredients recommended in medical books as being of benefit in female troubles, and 40 years of use has proven that the books are right. Begin taking Cardui today. MC-134

MASCOT FRENCHIE WOUNDED

Frenchie, a veteran of the trenches, getting expert attention at a general hospital No. 6, Fort Monmouth. Holding him is Sgt. S. L. H. Cohen, an invalided soldier. Frenchie's temporary proprietor, and dressing one of Frenchie's wounds is Miss Mae Linkley. United States war nurse. Frenchie is one of the latest arrivals from the trenches in France—one who has spent most of his life in the trenches. In fact, having been born in a trench in an American sector. He is a Newfoundland pup, five months old. He reached Fort Monmouth with a detachment of wounded soldiers. Frenchie was wounded, too. His beautiful tail had been entirely shot off and one of his forelegs grievously damaged. Frenchie's mother was a message carrier in the French army. She was assigned to service with the Americans and was killed in battle. His two brothers were killed shortly afterward.

Women as Air Pilots.

That it has been decided to have women as air pilots was the surprising statement made the other day at Sheffield by George Roberts, minister of labor, at a meeting of women enrolled for national service. Mr. Roberts added that many women will soon be in training, and that he was certain they would make excellent pilots. The government, Mr. Roberts said, would see that as far as possible women employed on war work at the front are not employed in the danger zones, but that naturally those engaged in rendering great services to Britain and the allies must necessarily run some risks.

Helping Hubby.

"Charley, dear," said Young Mrs. Torkins, "I have thought up a witticism for you to tell at the club." "Do I have to tell it?" "Of course not. But you'll miss a great chance if you don't. It's this: Baseball players ought to be put into the navy instead of the army. Go on; ask me 'Why?'" "Why?" "So that they can steal submarines easier."

Popular Postcard.

The postcard was introduced in 1870. In England, and its total for the first year was 75,000,000. It grew in popularity until in the year before the war over 600,000,000 cards were sent. The total for 1914-15 fell to 800,000,000, equal to 19 per cent of the population.

Doctors Say: "Take Iron"

For building up weak, nervous, run-down people, doctors prescribe iron. It is the greatest blood purifier and strengthener known and, taken in proper quantities, it builds up the body like nothing else can. But many of the iron preparations before the public contain too little iron; many of them contain 10 to 25 per cent of alcohol, and alcohol counteracts the efficiency of the iron.

Acid Iron Mineral

In addition to three forms of natural iron Acid Iron Mineral contains magnesium, potassium, sodium and calcium, medicinal properties which your doctor prescribes for indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, and many ailments arising from a disordered stomach. As a general tonic it comes closest to the ideal, making rich, pure blood and toning up the system and vital organs to normal.

Be sure you get Acid Iron Mineral; ask for it by name. Look for the A-I-M trade mark, it is your guarantee of a pure concentrated, efficient, economical iron product. At all reliable druggists or the Ferrodine Chemical Corp., Roanoke, Va., $1 per bottle prepaid.—Advertisement.

Boyle's Law.

This is a law given to a famous principle in pneumatics known as the law of the compression of gases. It was first discovered by Boyle in 1662, and afterward independently by Mariotte in 1670. It is as follows: The temperature remaining the same, the volume of a given quantity of gas is inversely as the pressure which it bears. In other words, when a given volume of any gas or vapor is compressed, so as to occupy a small space, its elastic force is increased; when the volume is increased its elastic force is diminished.

Camp Shoe Shop is Important.

The camp shoe shop is one of the industries of the army about which little has been written, but the cobbler follows the flag, and is as necessary as the soldier who supervises the mess hall. Shoes are an important adjunct to the man who has to do intensive drilling and training, and one of the things about which Uncle Sam is the most particular is the feet of his soldiers and sailors.

"Shell" is Plural of "Shell."

Another thing in which the gas shell has the advantage over the cylinder gas is in getting surprise, which is naturally much easier to effect with shell. By the way, if the reader wishes to be counted among those who know, he will always speak or write the plural of shell without adding a final "s." To talk of a number of shells is very civilian.—Maj. E. J. M. And in the Saturday Evening Post.

Telephones in China.

That China is being modernized faster than most of us may think is indicated by the increased use of the telephone in that vast country. It also is worthy of note that although practically the whole equipment comes from abroad and is to a considerable extent operated by foreigners, the prices for service are much below those to which we are accustomed in this land of high prices.—Chicago Journal.

CAN'T KEEP A GOOD SHIP DOWN

Half of Torpedoed Craft of Great Britain Have Been Salvaged.

METHODS GREATLY IMPROVED

Much Greater Weights Than Believed Possible Are Now Being Lifted—No Hope of Ever Raising Lusitania.

London.—Of 400 British ships sunk in the last two and a half years at least 50 per cent have been raised from the bottom of the sea. The organization responsible—the Admiralty Salvage department—is composed entirely of experts employed by a commercial firm which engaged in the business before the war. Ships were no cheap then, however, than it did not pay to raise a sunken wreck and restore it to seagoing condition. A change is very different now, and the result of that invention has been stimulated to an extraordinary extent. It is used to be considered that 1,500 tons was the greatest weight that could be lifted from under water by wire ropes. A sunken government collier that was obstructing a fairway was lifted out of the mud recently and carried away by four lifting ships, with sixteen derrick wire ropes, and the deckweight carried was calculated at 2,500 tons. The wreck was shifted out into the first lift, and so was gradually taken to the beach, patched up and sent off to the repairing yard. It went back into service and made several voyages before a torpedo ended her career altogether.

Cannet Raised Lusitania. Ships sunk in deep water cannot be salvaged. It is not expected that the Lusitania, for example, will ever be lifted. Divers cannot work in more than 25 fathoms successfully, though for special purposes they may sometimes go down to 35 fathoms for a brief spell of work.

The bulk of the ships saved have been sunk in less than 20 fathoms, or have been towed ashore by rescue tugs, and have gone aground in fairly easy positions. The salvage men face considerable risks, not only from bad weather but also from submarine attack. Only one salvage ship, however, has been lost through enemy action.

One of the largest oil tank steamships was mined and caught fire. There was a heavy explosion and the decks were flooded with burning oil. The cargo consisted largely of benzine. Most persons would conclude that the case was hopeless. Not so. The vessel was scuttled by gun fire and thus the fire was extinguished. Then divers patched all the shot holes, besides closing other apertures. On being pumped out the vessel floated and was towed with the vessel floated and taken into dock, practically all her cargo being saved.

The number of the ships of the mercantile marine actually salvaged by the department in two years from 1915 to 1917 was 260. All these vessels were of big tonnage. For the present year the monthly totals of such vessels salvaged were: January, 11; February, 41; March, 57; April, 31; May, 10. Thus the department has saved 407 important vessels of the mercantile marine. This does not include vessels salvaged outside of home waters.

The larger figures of the latter period were due, not to increased enemy activity but to improved salvage methods. Many risks are run by the divers, particularly from gases generated by decomposed vegetation and metal in the holds of sunken ships, deaths having resulted from this cause. Grain, it seems, develops sulphuretted hydrogen, which occasions blindness and violent sickness.

A chemist, however, has found a preparation which when sprayed on a rotting cargo immediately kills the gases and enables men to carry on their work in safety.

SLAPS WAR PROFITEER TWICE

Mother Hands Beautiful Passenger Wallow for Each of Her Sons in Service.

Monaca, Pa.—"I'm making big money, and for my part I wish the war would keep on awhile longer," remarked a man on a street car here. A well-dressed, motherly-looking woman arose and gave the man a stinging slap, with "Take that for my son in France! And take that for my other son who is in camp waiting to go to France!" she said as she applied the same treatment to the other cheek. The man took his punishment without saying a word.

STABBED IN THE BACK.

How Many Hopkinton Readers Have Had These Sudden Twinges.

Have you ever had a "crick" in the back?

Does your back ache with a dull, heavy, draggy throb?

It is hard to straighten up after stooping?

Hard to raise from a chair or turn in bed?

Is the urine dark colored? Passages irregular?

When your kidneys need attention use a tested kidney remedy.

Use Doan's Kidney Pills—the remedy that has proved its merit.

Convincing testimony in a Hopkinsville citizen's testimony.

G. H. Anderson, 628 Jessup Ave., Hopkinsville, says: "My back got so lame, I could hardly bend over to do any lifting work. The least movement sharp pains all through my body and my back ached constantly. My kidneys were irregular in action, too. I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and after using a supply which I procured at Higgins' Drug Store, my back was strengthened and my kidneys put in a healthy condition."

CAVALRY PLAYS BIG PART NOW

General Foch Used French Horsemen to Advantage in Big Drive.

PROVE GOOD FIGHTERS AFOOT

Rides 80 Miles in Day and Relieves Hard-Pressed British in Flanders—Makes New Place for Self in Warfare.

Washington.—Skillful use of French cavalry has marked General Foch's tactics ever since he took over control of the allied armies as supreme commander, according to information reaching military circles here. The horsemen have played an important role in the whole battle of 1918, as the struggle which began March 21 with the first German drive has come to be known.

The employment of a swift-moving cavalry in the present counter-attack from the Alsace-Marne line has been noted in the dispatches. Again General Foch took advantage of the great mobility of the mounted arm to throw it wherever his advancing infantry units threatened to lose touch with each other in the heat and confusion of the contest. No gaps have been left where the enemy might strike back, for always the horsemen came up to fill the hole until the infantry line could be reformed and connected in a solid front.

The same tactics marked the first use of French cavalry in the battle of Picardy, when the French took over 60 miles of front from the British to permit the latter to mass reserves at seriously threatened points of the line farther north.

Cavalry Fights Afoot.

A French cavalry corps complete with light artillery, armored cars and cyclists arrived first on the scene in Picardy and relieved the British. They fought it out afoot until the heavy French infantry arrived and took over the task.

Three days later the horsemen were on the move again, this time hurrying to the front, where the enemy was hitting hard at the Lys line. The cavalry rode hard as the advance guard of the French infantry columns marched toward St. Omar. In the first 24 hours, despite the long strain of fighting in Picardy, they covered 80 miles without losing a man or a horse on the way. In 60 hours they had transferred their whole corps over 125 miles and arrived east of Mont Cammel.

"It was a wonderful sight," writes the chief of staff of a division. "The horses were in fine condition; the men were cheerful and went singing, in spite of the sufferings and privations they had to endure."

"In truth, our boys looked a little tired, but they were all very proud that such an effort had been asked of them and all were bearing it cheerfully."

The cavalry corps stood in support of the British for ten days in April after the enemy had forced the line held by the Portuguese division. It maintained communication between two British armies and organized the ground, from Mont Cammel to Mont Kemmel, while the French army moved up behind it. As the French infantry came into line the cavalry was drawn off to the left in the Mont Kemmel region, and for five days the horsemen, fighting afoot with two infantry divisions, withstood the terrific assaults of the Germans who sought to hammer a way through behind Tynes at any cost.

They stood steady bombardment for days, and when the infantry was hemmed in on top of Mont Kemmel, the cavalry drove forward in counter-attack and held off the shock divisions of the enemy while the French gunners got their pieces away.

Later, at the battle of Lorraine, the cavalry also shared fully with the infantry, blocking gaps in the line, and the final definite occupation of the town for the allies was accomplished by a cavalry battalion. A sergeant and a handful of dragoons drove 40 Germans out of the town, and at another point a cavalry officer and 20 men backed up the infantry at a critical moment, the officer waving a pistol in one hand and a shovel in the other as he led the dash which restored the situation.

Defiant Campaign. A few days later the same cavalry, after another long ride, met the enemy advance against Villers-Cotterets woods in the Alsace sector, where the fighting today is raging fiercely, and where the horsemen again are engaged. When the Germans drove forward in their effort to get around the forest-to-Campagne, the horsemen blocked the road between the wooded region and the river Duree.

For the Good of the Cause

By GERALD ST. ETIENNE

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Gwendoline knew just exactly where she had laid her spade, but apparently it had disappeared. After searching vainly about her own lot, she looked at the next lot. There stood her spade against a chicken-run.

"The nerve of some people!" she gasped, as she made her way to secure the missing tool. "That is just like a man to have no tools of his own and to come borrowing mine," she muttered, as she started back. When she glanced over the lot she noticed a big change. More than half was dug up, and she was sure she had only spaded about a quarter of it. The borrower of her spade had done the rest, that was apparent. Gwendoline wished he had left it alone, just the same. Perhaps it was very nice of him, she reflected, but it looked to her very much like interference. She would not have undertaken to cultivate that building lot if she had not thought she could do it unaided. Women could dig just as well as men. This greater production campaign was going to show it. To begin with, more girls than men had taken up the idea of cultivating empty building lots. Gwendoline was equipped with a complete gardening outfit, costume and all. She started in spading again, but after a few minutes she had to stop to rest.

"If you would hold your spade a little higher up this handle, you would find the work much easier," she heard a man's voice say.

Gwendoline raised her shoulders and stood at her full height. She could feel just how impressive she was in her costume. She was hot and tired and for the first time felt a little discouraged, so it was little wonder she was not in her usual pleasant frame of mind.

"I am managing nicely," she said frigidly. "I have spaded gardens before, you know." She was sorry the minute she had spoken the words, but it was too late to undo them. She heard an embarrassed cough and the man retreating to his chicken runs. When she looked over in his direction, five minutes later, she saw that he was quite a young man, and it occurred to her that he was really nice looking. Why, it was Albert Buldome, the accountant at one of the banks! She had known him by sight for months. That made her more chagrined than ever. He was hammering away at a small coop. His cheeks were red—from exertion or from the cut she had given his feelings, she wondered which. Although she was worn out before she had worked another hour, Gwendoline was not ready to give in. She could work at her gardening just as long as he could work around his chickens. She wished she had chosen chickens to raise instead of vegetables. She knew much more about them and the work was not nearly so hard. They were an necessary, too. She had been unable to think that gardening would be so much fun. She had enjoyed two months on her uncle's poultry farm one summer, and had learned a lot about chickens. Of course, she would not have been able to build the coops and runs—at least not very well. It was hard to admit, even to herself, that there were some things men could do that women could not. That she would win out on that garden, though, she resolved firmly.

It looked very much as if she was going to win out, too. The lot was really a small one, but it seemed a whole farm by the time Gwendoline had it all spaded and raked. The planting of the seeds was more interesting. When they started to sprout through the ground, she was sure her fortune was made. A week of splendid growing weather worked wonders with the plants, and she could hardly contain her joy when she made her daily visits. Then came a special rush at the office. For nearly a week Gwendoline had to neglect the garden, but everything had taken such a good start she was confident that no harm could come of it.

When she did get a chance to visit her lot again, she could hardly wait for the car to stop to let her off. Her radishes would be ready to eat and her corn would be a foot high, she felt sure of it. What a shock she got when she arrived! What had once been bright green leaves were black and dead. Her corn and beans were hardly recognizable. The radishes looked blighted and the lettuce looked as if it had been eaten off. Chickens! She blamed them instantly. What else could have done it but chickens? That was Albert Buldome's way of getting back at her for spitting him as she had done. The wretch!

"It is a sorry sight, isn't it?" Gwendoline was too excited to distinguish the note of sympathy in Albert's voice. She grabbed her spade, which happened to be the first thing handy to clutch, and faced him, with eyes blazing.

"It is your wretched chickens," she blurted angrily. "How dare you allow them out!"

"My chickens haven't been out," he said. "His line she could not mistake the kindness in his tone. 'The frost last night did this damage. It came on unexpectedly or I would have been able to save them for you. I covered your corn and beans with newspapers about midnight, but the frost had preceded me. It is rather early to sow corn and beans, you know.'"

"It must have taken hours to cover all that ground with papers. Did you come here specially to do it?"

"It was nothing," he laughed, in embarrassment. "You would have done the same thing if our positions had been reversed. I have had bad luck, too. My chickens are dying at an alarming rate."

"What do you feed them?" Gwendoline asked, her mind off her own misfortune instantly.

He explained his methods. "That is all wrong," she declared emphatically. "I learned a lot on my uncle's farm. I will tell you just what to do."

Before she had finished "telling" him they had decided upon a partnership. Albert was to assist her with her gardening and she was to help him with his poultry. It was surprising how enthusiastic they became over the prospect of it.

The results were much better than they dreamed. The new seeds that they planted just seemed to spring from the ground and form big healthy plants. No more chickens died. They were ready for the market earlier than most spring fowl and brought high prices. The time spent at the lots didn't seem to be wearisome now to Gwendoline and Albert. They arranged their vacation at the same time so that they could put every minute of it to use of greater production. Somehow a vacation spent for the "good of the cause" was a pleasant one.

After everything had been harvested and the last chicken parted with, the "producers" viewed the deserted lots sadly.

"What if we don't get lots together next year?" Gwendoline ventured.

"I own this lot and I'm thinking of buying the one next to it," Albert said. "Whatever do you want with two lots?" Gwendoline cried in surprise.

"I am thinking of building, some day. Wouldn't it be a splendid place to live? Just look at that view!"

"A suburban home would be lovely—with a garden and chickens and everything," Gwendoline declared, as she gazed over the landscape.

It was a wonderful opportunity for Albert. The beautiful autumn sun was going down behind the hills, and he spoke the few words that brought the answer that made them "the happiest pair in the world."

Three Cows and a Lily Equal Five Cows and No Lily

WE are offering you the Lily cream separator because the Lily is the machine we believe in. Its records and tests have convinced us that you can make more money from three cows and a Lily than with five cows and no Lily. That ought to interest you.

We believe in the sturdy, simple, sanitary design; the working of the few closely-grouped gears; the splash oiling system that doesn't fail; the one-adjustment feature which we will explain later.

Most of all we believe in the Lily bowl, which gets all the cream out of the milk, down to about one drop in each gallon. That's what counts.

Come in and see this good cream separator.

RECREATION FOR THE FIGHTERS IN FRANCE

When not engaged in driving back the Hun, the Allied soldiers in France enjoy themselves like so many youngsters let out of school. They romp about the beaches along the coast of France, make friends with the kiddies and, using the jargon of the day, "sure have some time." Here is a group of American, French and British soldiers seated on the beach with members of the Women's Auxiliary Ambulance Corps watching children at play.

GERMAN OFFICERS ANXIOUS FOR PEACE

ADMIT CONDITIONS HOPELESS FOR THE FATHERLAND BUT WILL FIGHT IF CRUSHING THREAT ENDED.

British Army Headquarters, Aug. 25.—The demeanor of hundreds of German officials taken prisoner recently is in striking contrast with the attitude of the officers captured by the British in their retreat last spring. The German officer prisoners were arrogant and meant to crush the British to earth, but now they are depressed and very anxious. They appear very willing to talk and the tenor of their conversation may be summed up as follows:

They say Germany entered the war with enthusiasm but this has long since disappeared and the struggle has now become an economic one with Great Britain. They admit Germany is in practically hopeless condition, both economically and from the man-power point of view and ask whether Great Britain cannot now consider Germany sufficiently reduced to be no longer a dangerous trade rival or whether the allies intend to crush her altogether. In the latter case, they say Germany will be forced to fight to the end, but they make no effort to conceal their impression of what this means for the fatherland.

They say they believe there is every disposition to evacuate Belgium and northern France and even negotiate for the retention of evacuation of Alsace-Lorraine. They are generally unanimous in agreeing that annexations thus far and the Brest-Litovsk peace treaty were a great mistake but think they cannot withdraw from Russia in the present condition of affairs there.

They are aware that the American army now has assumed very formidable proportions and there is a general admission of the seriousness of this factor.

The submarine campaign they cannot refer to without gestures of impatience. Captured non-commissioned officers attribute recent German defeats to the inefficiency of their air service and more especially to the inexperience and lack of stamina of the latest recruits, who are most inadequately trained and who are physically incapable of sustaining the heavy strain of defensive warfare. The mere presence of these new recruits, they say, produces in a company a demoralizing effect upon the older men because it indicates to what straight Germany must be reduced to employ such poor material.

DRIVEN OUT OF CAVES HALF DRESSED.

German Officers, including a General, Retire Before French in Haste and Disorder.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 25.—(By the A. P.) The first phase of the battle of the Aisne and Oise has put the French in solid possession of the entire south bank of the Oise west of the Ailette and also the Ailette river from the Oise to Pont St. Mand.

At a point near where it is crossed by the road from Chauny to Soissons, Gen. Mangin's men along the Ailette and further south at Crecy-au-Mont, Pommiers and Guigney, command this important road all the way from Soissons to the Oise. They also command the Laon Railroad, which from the region of Courcy-le-Chateau northwards runs nearly parallel with that road.

The Germans are thus thrown back upon the hilly forest region of Courcy, for communication between their troops on the Aisne east of Soissons.

Oise Lined With Guns. Both sides command the Oise with nothing the stream have found it so formidable defended by machine gun nests and by artillery in the hills, all along the Noyon to Chauny that it will require considerable work by the heavy artillery to deal with the situation before a crossing in force is attempted.

On the right hand of the Ailette the Germans are resisting stoutly from a position along the edge of the forest of Courcy. Small parties of French have effected a crossing of the stream but no serious effort has yet been made to establish a position on the opposite bank.

As the situation is today, Gen. Mangin has gained a substantial victory of which there is plenty of material evidence on the field besides 13,000 prisoners and 300 cannon captured. He set out first to drive the Germans from the Plateau of Andignicourt, Campeel and Carlepoint by a violent thrust northward and then, by a quick flanking about toward the east, to drive them off the heights west of Ailette, thus clearing the south bank of the Oise and leading support to the third army's action in the hills of Thiessourt.

German General Runs For Life. The program succeeded in every form of the exits of a cavern at the enemy may say that he retired unhindered, some of his staff officers were obliged to flee in scanty attire. A German general was seen running from one of the exits of a cavern at the top of Mount Choisy without boots or suspenders, just as French soldiers appeared at the entrance.

In the piles of arms and ammunition that have been collected on and around the height there are a considerable number of bayonets with the saw tooth blade.

Mount Choisy Hard to Crack. If the Germans did not intend to remain south of the Oise they evidently thought they could hold this position and they were driven out of it precipitately, though it was stoutly defended and proved to be a hard task for Gen. Mangin's army. The slopes are covered with brush that hides the gullies and cavern entrances where machine gun nests in ambush held up the division that was engaged in the attack from 8 o'clock in the morning until eight o'clock in the evening. The Germans were even preparing to spend the night in their elaborately fitted headquarters in the quarry at the top.

After a short artillery preparation the place was stormed and the German staff had only just time to get away. One officer was taken a

COUNCIL BANS HOGS OWNERS RAISE KICK

HENDERSON PREFERS TO BE CLASSED AS A COUNTRY TOWN.

HENDERSON, Aug. 26.—Since the decision of the city board of Council to exclude the hogs out from the city limits by Aug. 30, citizens who own swine are said to be up in arms against the decision. It is reported a petition against the order is being circulated.

They stated that they purchased hogs early in the spring when the government urged every one to "keep a pig" to help win the war and were given authority to keep pigs in the city by an ordinance adopted by the city council.

In the East End especially there is strong feeling in the matter. It is said that there are no less than a thousand pigs in that end of the city.

One leading resident of that section claims that there has been no typhoid in that end of town. He says further that the people are keeping pigs purely from motives of patriotism because their government asked them to. They built sheds and pens and spent a good deal of money which is lost if they turn the pigs loose. He states that garbage that used to be thrown on the ground is now fed to the pigs and that weeds are pulled and fed to the pigs also. He says that the owners of pigs have not yet taken steps to dispose of them.

prisoner said: "The French are making war in an entirely new fashion. It is a great attack."

FROM PETTUS BAKER.

Glennaston, Ireland, Aug. 3, 1918

Hello Dad:

What do you think of your son now? We came from England to Ireland safely over the Irish Sea.

I have been in all of the largest cities in England and Wales. Have been in London tower, Trafalgar Square, the Strand, over the Thames, in Holyhead, South Wales, and we have the honor of being the first American soldiers in Dublin, Ireland, and the Irish treat us fine.

Milk is two cents a cup and Ireland is not rationed either. The only thing we can't get is good tobacco.

Answer real soon.

With love to all,
 Your son,
 PRIVATE P. C. BAKER.
